Whiskered Presidents.

New York Sun.
If the grave issue of whiskers is raised against Charles Evans Hughes he may defend himself by citing honorable precedent. Of the eight Presidents elected by the Republican party, seven wore their hair upon their faces. McKinley only was smooth shaven. Roosevelt, and Taft wore mustaches; Lincoln, Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Harrison all decorated their front elevations with birsute adornments. Moreover, while Johnson mowed himself close, Arthur wore side whiskers, very carefully tended. Mr. Hughes is as handsome as any of them; and it has never been suggested that he let his beard grow to conceal a deficiency of will power, popularly supposed to be advertised by a "strong chin."

BOWEL COMPLAINTS IN INDIA.

In a lecture at one of the Des Moines, Iowa, churches a missionary from India told of going into the interior of India, where he was taken sick, that he had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with him and believed that it saved his life. This remedy is used successfully in India both as a preventive and cure for cholera. You know from this that it can be depended upon for the milder forms of bowel complaint that occur in this country. Obtainable everywhere.

BRITISH AND FRENCH WANT TAMICO OIL.

German Agencies Charged With Striving to Level Against United States Throughout Latin-American Countries.—International Commission Suggested to Settle Issues.

Washington Dispatch, June 21.
While General Carranza and his cabinet had under consideration today the American rejection of the demand for the recall of General Peris-hing's troops from Mexico, European diplomats were exerting pressure upon the First Chief to prevent him from going to war with the United States, according to advices reaching here from Mexico City. Some intimations as to Carranza's next move was expected hourly tonight at the State Department.

Special Agent Rodgers, in reporting that the American note was taken up by the First Chief and his cabinet, was unable to forecast the action of the de facto Government or to throw light on what was going on in the Mexican Capital. From other sources, however, it was learned that the Entente Allies were particularly anxious that nothing should occur at this time to shut off the oil supply for the British and French Navy from the Tampico fields and that they were using their influence to prevent a break with the United States.

Put Blame on Germans.

Allied diplomatic representatives in Mexico believe too that German influence has been working on Carranza in an effort to create a situation that might embarrass the enemies of the central powers. They have asserted that German agencies have been active in stirring up feeling against the United States not only in Mexico, but throughout South and Central America, to prevent this country from securing trade formerly controlled by German merchants.

It is understood that the diplomats have pointed out to General Carranza that the American note only declines to consider immediately any suggestion that its troops be withdrawn from Mexico and that it quotes a portion of the agreement between General Scott and General Obregon, providing for the gradual withdrawal of the forces.

Another suggestion is that the dispute over border conditions could well be referred to an international commission under the treaty of 1818 between the two countries. Diplomatic officials here are known to believe that President Wilson would consider this suggestion if he met with no interference in the meantime in his efforts to guard the American border from bandits.

Wilson Reviews Troops.

A study of all General Carranza's communications and actions during the last few months has given little around officials feel, for a hopeful view of the situation. His attitude has been one of growing hostility and officials are not inclined to believe that it could be readily overcome.

While these matters occupied the attention of the State Department, President Wilson stood on the sidewalk in front of the White House today to review 2000 members of the District of Columbia National Guard as they passed up Pennsylvania avenue on their way to the mobilization camp at Fort Myer, Va. Mr. Wilson's appearance, accompanied by Secretary Baker, was greeted with cheers from the crowd gathered along the avenue. The President's eyes followed particularly the men in citizen clothing but carrying rifles and ammunition belts who appeared at intervals among the uniformed guardsmen. They were recruits who rushed to offer themselves immediately the call for the National Guard went out.

Here is a Kick in Earnest.

To the Editor of The Journal:

We are very much pleased with the present sanitary agitation and crusade recently inaugurated in Monroe. We hope that it will result in a clean and sanitary town and also inspire the people of the rural districts of this county to greater efforts along this line. But there is one phase of the work that "gets our goat." We are eternally tired of and opposed to the City of Monroe hauling its filth, its refuse and the dead bodies of its animals just outside the city limits and depositing them squarely under the noses of the suburban residents. This is not proper sanitation but simply "passing the buck" to your neighbor.

The contents of surface closets, dead horses, cats, dogs, cows, chickens, billy goats and many other things of a similar nature have been hauled out on the south of town, sometimes causing such a stench that the residents of that section were compelled to hold their noses while trying to eat their food.

The tin can is said to be a breeding place for mosquitoes. If this is true, and we think it is—then the discarded tin cans should be buried or disposed of in some other way that will keep it from becoming a menace to others.

If you ask what shall the town do with such things, we answer that this is your affair—we have troubles of our own.—Suburban Resident.

[It is a misdemeanor to leave a dead carcass unburied. Suburban Resident ought to indict somebody. The practice is a nuisance.—The Journal.]

WILL MY CHILD TAKE DR. KING'S NEW DISCOVERY?

Hi Jacet Joe.

To the Editor of The Journal:—The account you gave in the last issue of your valuable paper of the passing of Capt. Heath's pet bull dog, and the friendship between the two, which prompted the Captain to erect a statue to his memory, recalls to my mind a little poem I clipped years ago from Henry Watterson's great paper, which I think your readers will enjoy. The author's name was not given, and I submit it as I found it.—K. H. Monroe, R. F. D. 5.

Hi Jacet Joe, being the melancholy musings of an estimable gentleman who bet on the wrong side in the Bisco-McCarthy race. I leave this Sunday, to the old plantation; And walking o'er the scenes of early youth, I called up many an old association, And royal romps, and rows, and boyish mirth.

As through the field-I strolled and meditated Upon the boy-life in the years ago, I established on a board which quosely stated, In busy characters "HI JACET JOE."

Hi Jacet Joe, who was a dog, and sharer Of all my boyhoods, glory and disgrace, The bearer of my blame, as well as bearer Of all the hardships of his entire race.

He was a dog—can more than that be spoken, He was a dog, and I a country lad; You know, at once, the tale those words betoken, Or, if you don't, your youth was iron-clad.

I buried Joe, and left the old plantation— His life was ended just as mine began— I buried Joe and fought for bread station, And bread and station I suppose have won.

And in this strife I had a most forgotten The country lad, and Joe his country friend, Heigho! perchance this life is brazen, rotten, While that—oh, well, that could not else but end!

Good-bye, old Joe, I cannot linger later, For work and Monday wait in town for me— Here lieth Joe and I with terra-mater— In town, and I, as I have grown to be.

I go; but in my desert life, in flowers, A country of youth and truth shall grow, And there shall I retire in silent hours— And in the greenest spot, Hi Jacet Joe.

CLEAR SKIN COMES FROM WITHIN.

It is foolish to think you can gain a good clear complexion by the use of face powder. Get at the root of the trouble and thoroughly cleanse the system with a treatment of Dr. King's New Life Pills. Gentle and mild in action, do not gripe, yet they relieve the liver by their action on the bowels. Good for young, adults and aged. Go after a clean complexion today. 25c. at your druggist.
